

ARTICLE APPEARED
ON PAGE 3THE WASHINGTON POST
28 March 1977

POSTSCRIPT

ADM. STANSFIELD TURNER
... a large estate

The new CIA director, Adm. Stansfield Turner, has a net worth of $456,500, according to records filed with the Senate Intelligence Committee. The admiral and Mrs. Turner also managed to reduce their taxes considerably last year, even though his Navy salary stayed about the same. The Turners paid $14,026 in federal income taxes for 1974, but only $3,461 for 1975. The reduction came from investing in a tax shelter, Teal Petroleum, Ltd., in Houston, which enabled Turner to claim $25,000 in losses for "intangible drilling and development costs."

And Turner has turned back to the Navy in a time of need: he's picked retired Cdr. Herbert E. Hetu to replace Andrew Falkiewicz as assistant to the director for press relations. Hetu worked for former Navy Secretary John H. Chafee while on active duty, and joined the double-dippers by working for another former secretary, John W. Warner, as an executive at the Bicentennial Commission.